Bribery & Corruption Risk

Executive Summary

Risk Analysis Report: David Ferrera

Key Findings and Concerns

David Ferrera, a U.S. citizen and resident of Orange County, California, is a former senior executive of Balt USA LLC and a former owner of the predecessor medical device company [Source 1, 3, 5]. On March 4, 2026, a federal grand jury in the Central District of California indicted Ferrera for his alleged role in an international bribery and money laundering scheme [Source 3, 8]. The Department of Justice (DOJ) alleges that Ferrera conspired with Belgian consultant Marc Tilman to bribe a physician at the Centre Hospitalier Universitaire de Reims (CHU Reims), a state-owned public university hospital in France, to influence the purchase of medical devices [Source 1, 2, 3, 5, 7].

Risk Severity and Categories

The risk severity is critical, involving multiple criminal indictments for high-level corporate misconduct. The categories of risk include:

Corruption and Bribery: Alleged violations of the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act (FCPA) for routing bribes to a foreign official [Source 1, 2, 3, 7].

Financial Crime: Alleged conspiracy to commit money laundering and substantive money laundering charges [Source 1, 2, 3, 7].

* Compliance Failure: Alleged use of sham consulting agreements, fake invoices, and off-channel communications (personal emails and encrypted messaging) to conceal illicit payments [Source 1, 2, 3, 7].

Timeline of Incidents

2017 – September 2023: The period during which the conspiracy to offer and route bribes to the French official allegedly occurred [Source 1, 3, 7].

July 30, 2019: An alleged corrupt wire transfer of approximately €20,000 from Balt USA to Tilman's Belgian company [Source 1].

October 28, 2019: An alleged corrupt wire transfer of approximately €25,000 from Balt USA to Tilman's Belgian company [Source 1].

January 31, 2020: An alleged money laundering transfer of approximately €25,000 from Balt USA to Tilman's Belgian company [Source 1].

April 21, 2020: An alleged money laundering transfer of approximately €38,500 from Balt USA to Tilman's Belgian company [Source 1].

March 4, 2026: Ferrera was formally indicted by a federal grand jury in the Central District of California [Source 3, 8].

* March 24, 2026: Reported (unverified) that Ferrera pleaded not guilty to the charges [Source 6].

Potential Business Impact

The alleged scheme involved approximately $602,000 in bribes, which generated roughly $1.68 million in revenue and $1.21 million in profits [Source 2]. While the corporate entities (Balt SAS and Balt USA LLC) received a DOJ declination due to voluntary self-disclosure and cooperation, they were required to disgorge $1,214,797 to the U.S. and pay a fine of €1,765,493 to French authorities [Source 2, 7]. Ferrera faces six criminal counts and forfeiture allegations, with prosecutors seeking the forfeiture of property traceable to the FCPA and money laundering offenses [Source 1].
